Road

Highways

- As the only city in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA) serviced by seven major highways, Mississauga offers fast, convenient access to major destinations in Canada and the USA.
- Highway 401 is a multi lane highway running from Windsor on the west to the Quebec border on the east. Often called "Ontario's Main Street", it is by far the busiest highway in Canada and North America. Running through the Greater Toronto corridor, it is a complex system of express lanes, collector lanes and ramps. Highway 401 passes through Mississauga with six interchanges within the City.
- Highway 403 is a multiple lane highway which connects the QEW with Highway 401 and provides an east/west highway link through the centre of Mississauga. There is a convenient interchange at Hurontario St. (Highway 10) with access to the Mississauga City Centre: a major concentration of mixed uses including office, residential, retail and entertainment. Carpool lanes (HOV - High Occupancy Vehicle lanes) are operational on Hwy. 403 allowing vehicles carrying more than one passenger to cut travel times.
- Highway 409 provides a direct link from Highways 401 and 427 to Toronto Pearson International Airport.
- Highway 410 provides a link northwards from Highways 403 and 401 through the City of Mississauga to the City of Brampton. It services a major portion of Mississauga's industrial area west of Pearson International Airport.
- Highway 427 is a north/south highway system linking the City of Toronto with Mississauga and areas to the north.
- The Queen Elizabeth Way (QEW), is a highway that connects the GTA with the international border at Niagara. The QEW provides entry to the USA at Lewiston, Niagara Falls and Buffalo and passes through Mississauga en route to downtown Toronto.

Additional Airports

- Several other airports within driving distance of Mississauga provide service with scheduled airlines and private commuter aircrafts. These airports include: Toronto City Centre, Toronto Buttonville Municipal Airport, Oshawa Municipal Airport, Brampton Airport & Hamilton International Airport.

Rail

- Canada's two principal railways, Canadian National (CN) and Canadian Pacific (CP) have main lines traversing Mississauga.
- Provides spur line/freight potential as well as offering comfortable and convenient commuter and regular passenger rail service.

Intermodal

- CN and CP Rail provide intermodal services from terminals in Brampton, just north of Mississauga, (CN); Etobicoke, just east of Mississauga, (CP); and Vaughan, northeast of Mississauga, (CP).
- Clients may deal directly with the rail companies to pick up a container or a conventional truck load for shipment by rail and delivery by local delivery truck or transport at the receiving end.
- Due to flexibility, intermodal is rapidly growing as a regular rail service in direct competition to highway trucking.
